CANADIAN ANNEXATION.

Another Gun - Progress of the Good Work-Public Meetings in Favor of Americanism- Enthusiastic Reso-Intions-Political Troubles-A Standing Army-Loyal Filibustering.

OTTAWA, July 28, 1870. The agitation in Canada continues unabated, indeed it grews daily, despite the efforts of the teries to belittle and repress it. The HERALD'S Ottawa correspondence published on the 27th gave a spicy chapter of political history of especial interest to American readers, with some prophecies as to startling changes possible in the near future. Events have within the week home out the views of the HERALD, and I deem it well to report progress, although necessarily briefly, lest I wear out my welcome. In my previous letters I alluded to a campaign now being presecuted among the French Canadians in the interests of annexation, instancing the election in Quebec East and the mass meetings held at Levis, Kamouraska and other points. I own I am quite at a loss to account for the success which attends these meetings. If the Catholie clergy willed it they could put an end to all these demonstrations by one crack of the whip of religious coercion over their abject team. But they permit or do not oppose the holding of these meetings under the auspices of men practically under the ban of the Church. It has been reported that the American sympathizers in Canada were approaching the Catholic clergy of Canada through the CATHOLIC CLERGY IN NEW YORK. and that they would endeavor to obtain the good offices of the American hierarcy in converting or disarming the conservative clergy of Canada. But I cannot think that they should have so soon succeeded in so vital a point as this.

To resume, Sunday is the great day for political discussions in Catholic Canada, and the hustings are the various church doors. After vespers the whole congregation gathers without the sacred edifice, the county member or the stump orator of the day stands on the steps or on the seat of a vehicle, and the session is opened. The French Canadian goes in for public meetings and speech making almost as strong by as the American. The selecting of the church as the place of meeting is a sign of the Norman character again. The people are all religion. If a man gets bankrupt and his property is to be sold out. the bailiff or sheriff advertises the sale "at the door of the church."

The meeting now alluded to was organized by the Montreal annexation party, and took place last Sunday at four o'clock at the door of the parish church at Staufold, in the county Arthabaska. Thus you will see the PLAMES HAVE BURST OUT in a new place, and proved that the whole heart of the people is in a glow as ardent as that in Vesavius, only awaiting opportunity for a declaration shout which there can be no doubt.

Arthabaska lies about midway between Thre-Rivers on the St. Lawrence, and Richmond Junetion on the Grand Trunk Railway, It is a newly settled county, and its settlement was directed by the priests. It is a "border county" that is on the frontier of the English townships, and the wiley chief of the Catholic Church keeps their bulwarks well manned, and will not allow any "carpet bagging" to break up their settlements. The county was formerly represented by J. B. E. Dorion, the "spoiled child" of the Carter party, and who was thrashed in the Parliamentary library in 1866, by

There were between 2,500 and 3,000 people present at this meeting. The chair was taken by the Mayor, and a tremendous number of orators spread themselves. For annexation, Messrs. Turgeon, Laurier, Richard and Piteau made their plea, while Messrs. Buies (editor of the Independant), Crepeau and Pacaud drew it mild and went for independence for the present. M. Gerin, editor of the Constitutionnel, to whom I have previously alluded as one of the foremost political writers and constitutional students of the day, unheld the cause of British connection against both partica.

YOUNG DANTONS AND ROBESPIERRES Almost all of these speakers are young French advocates, well educated, active, liberal, fearless and enthusiastic. They have an ideal Canada much as the Italian an ideal Rome. They are college bred and deeply read in Hugo and the elo quence of 1789-93. Camille Desmoulins, Danton Robespierre, Barras-these men are their models and there is in them the stuff, if it be properly moulded, to bring about another revolution. Car tier and the heroes of the Rebellion of 1837-38 were just such men as these-clever, poor unknown, enthusiastic and visionary young men.

Of the lot, Gerin, on the side of conservatism, towers above them all-a man of talent, study, moderation and courage. Laurier probably comes next, and is likely to make his mark. Le Consti tutionnel, after briefly disposing of the others, mays of M. Laurier:- "He is a more serious man Since his arrival in the country his popularity grows daily, and every eye looks on him as the future representative. His talents and sterling character have gained him public confidence."

This is "praise from Sir Hubert Stanley," which is "praise indeed." Two sets of resolutions were placed before the andience, and those prepared and moved by M Laurier were adopted.

HIGH TREASON

These run as follows:-England, by withdrawing her troops and other acts, has declared our bonds of dependence broken, and we should seek in another political form a guarantee for our national existence.

The initiative in this choice belongs to and rests in the people.

The history of the past proves that our local
The history of the past proves that our local The history of the past proves that our local governments—the dominion government and Eng lish assistance—have proved unable to develop the wealth of Canada, to introduce education and industry, and that far from marching with the progressive spirit of the age, we have lagged behind, weighed down by a heavy debt and ruinous taxation which depopulated the country and led it to its ruin, and we cannot form an independent ration.

The annexation of the Dominion of Cauada to The annexation of the Dominion of Cauada to the United States would assure to all religious and races among us a full and ample protection, the introduction of manufacturing industry, abundance of capital, popular education and the return here to their homes of all the Canadians now peattered abroad over the face of the American Union.

The citizens of Arthabaska laying the record to The citizens of Arthabaska invite the people in the other countries of Canada to declare them-selves on the subject of the choice of the new political institution which we must shortly adopt. TACKING TOWARDS THE SAME HARBOR.

The resolutions introduced by M. Pacand are as f llows:

It is an essential principle, and only simple justice, that the motion country should protect and defend her coloules.

On these craditions only can she exact fidelity and afternoon.

On these conditions only can she senset fidelity and adjugations from them.

Great Britain is withdrawing from Canada daily her troops and munitions of war.

Our nosition as a British colony leaves us open to attack in Regiand's quarrel, and already twice this year we have had for recell her enemies from our hearths and homes.

Whereas, a delegate has been sent by the Canadian government to England to Induce the mother country to withdraw a born her propert course; her prosent course; olved. That while the British empire rules this country

That until the Hon. A. Campbell returns to this country we shoul? Foundain in expectation, but without taking any action. That this meeting believes, and declares solemnly, that if Mr. Cal upbell does not obtain that protection which is due to the at the hands of the Britian government, it will then be the duly of the people of Canada to demand their independence.

declared in their respective resolutions that these are worth reproducing. The independents throw the blame on England, and declare that unless she does as they desire they will demand their independence. But the annexationists have the weather gage, and their platform will be sure to be popular. It follows the platforms laid down by the American people in the Declaration of Independence, and by the French republicans in 1790, in declaring that the people shall decide upon their own fature. And the hint that, with the stars and stripes waving over the citadel at Quebec, the French Canadians now dispersed all over the American Union would return to Canada, is a master-stroke. It will "take" with the mass of the people, especially the young men, who enthusiastically love their country and their nationality and entertain dazzling hopes as to the influence of the French in America. It is like the French idea, that they are the standard bearers of Europe. This "new idea" is like that of the

of the RETURN TO JERUSALEM

of the Jews. In a few weeks you will hear all over Canada new political songs sung to the airs so dear to the Cauadian heart, "La Belle Canadienne," or "La Marseillaise," or that splendid song written at just such a crisis of excitement by Cartier, ere yet he became a Baronet:—"O Canada; Mon Pays, Mes Amours." (O Canada; My Country and My Loves.).

The work in the eastern townships does not halt one whit, and appearances would seem to indicate that Missiquo! will again be the battlefield. The Honorable Sir A. T. Galt has been invited to deliver the annual oration before the agricultural society of that county, just as Mr. Huntington was last year. This is a snub on the county member, Mr. Baker, and consequently the loyalists tried to get square by arranging that a pre-entation of a stand of colors should take place on the same occasion to the county volunteers who distinguished themselves during the late Fenian raid. This was a deep and desperate dedge, and I doubt whether the feeling would not have

Fortunately cooler counsel prevailed, and the tinguished themselves during the late Fenian raid. This was a deep and desperate dedge, and I doubt whether the feeling would not have

CULMINATED IN BLOOBHED.

Fortunately cooler counsel prevailed, and the presentation was deferred. Still it shows what both parties are prepared to do, and I am no political prophet if I am not called upon to report riot and bloodshed ere winter.

In my last I aliuded briefly to a probable split in the ranks of the rouges, between Mr. Holton and Mr. Darion, on the question of independence. Mr. Holton has just declared his position in a letter, wheroin he says:—

"Regarding the attempt to introduce the question of independence into the area of practical politics as extremely unwise, and as fraught with great peril to the liberal party in Lower Canada, whose fortunes I have so long followed, my aim was, by a calm and earnest statement of some considerations lying at the threshold of the subject, to arrest the attention of valued friends, who, there was some reason to believe, were about to commit what I could not help considering a grave political blunder, by assisting in the formation of a distinctive party to agitate the question of immediate independence. Highly as are the uses of party and party fidelity to be esteemed in countries possessing representative institutions, it would be absurd to pretend that on a question so momentous as this the ordinary obligations of party fealty can be invoked to bind the consciences or control the judgments of the members of a party organized for purposes within the usual scope of political parties. On the contrary, if this question is really made a practical one it must necessarily supersede old party issues and lead to a comple recast of parties. * * My own position on this question can be very briefly, and it shall be very plainly, stated. In the present circumstances of the country I do not regard independence as either desirable or attainable. No adequate cause of revolution exists among us, and, in the absence of any such cause, I do n

Dominion."
Such are the last dying words of Mr. Holton, Such are the last dying words of Mr. Holton, and rarely is a political conjecture so accurately and speedily verified as that made in the New York Herald. Since June, 1869, that journal has predicted the complete obliteration of party lines as sure to follow when independence became at all popular. More recently, reviewing Mr. Holton's situation, it took occasion to allude to the schism between him and his colleagues on this question of independence, and put into his mouth the very words which he here employs concerning rlaing superior to party ties. Mr. Holton is walking right onward to a coalition with Sir John A. Macdonald, and the most weatherwise politicians at the capital declare that if within the next two months independence or annexation gains ground the capital declare that if within the next two months independence or annexation gains ground then the coalition will be formed to prevent it. In fine the Herald still seems to deserve the eulogium passed upon it by poor McGee, who, on one occasion in conversation, observed, "The New York Herald will come nearer the fact in a hundred political predictions than any other paper in the world." However, this letter has not to do JOURNALISTIC INFALLIBILITY. so let me get on. Mr. Mackenzie is well known to be strongly opposed to independence, and I remember that one of General Averill's written out. remember first articles last year was written with a view of drawing him out. He has since declared himself decidedly enough, Heaven knows. Mr Galt is in quiet quarters at Caeconna or Cushing's Island, endeavoring to solve the conundrum, "What are the wild waves saying?" He fights very shy of his own bandling, independence, and his friends accuse him of waiting to see how the political cat is going to jumpere he declares himself. I know that the General last year complained that Mr. Galt's colors were not sufficiently prononce. In a few days, however, he must come out flat fosted, or else retire into political obscurity for the rest of his life.

The loyal press, with that amiable insanlty which characterizes it, has been foaming at the mouth over the hostile reception which met Earl Carnarvon's very foolish notion in the Lords, thanking the Canadian

thanking the Canadian forepressing the Fenian troubles. All this indignation is useful as showing how preternaturally exacting Canadians are towards Engiand. No slight whatever was conveyed in the rejection of Earl Carnarvon's foolish motion; but the motion itself was an insult to the dignity of the House, and it is looked upon in this light by the wiser suirits here. In course of conversation restordsy and it is looked upon in this light by the wiser spirits here. In course of conversation yesterday with Colonel Chamberlin, than whom there is no more enthusiastic Canadian, and who, as the mest distinguished "here" of the recent war of Chickabiddy Lick, should feel the slight keenest, if slight there were, he said, very sensibly:—

"England votes thanks to Nelson or Wellington after the Nile or Waterloo. We simply did our duty. We hadn't a man scratched in two petty skirmishes. To expect that the English nation is going to formally vote us thanks is ridiculous. I can stand swords and medals, but even I can't atand that."

He, however, is one of the few men of his party who have common "horse" sense.

Talking of volunteers reminds me that Canada

TANDING ARMY.

The government is evidently pretty well satisfied, as has been foretold all along in the Herald, the English troops are to be withdrawn and the task of defending the Dominion thrown on the people of Canada. Ships are sailing from Quebec with guns and stores removed from the Citadel, barrack stores and bedding are everywhere being sold and a company of speculative Yankees have offered to buy out the Citadel property at Quebec and turn it into a boulevard. Shades of Wolfe and Sir William Phipps, has it come to this!

The Canadian "army" will, in numbers, be something like the terrible battalions which manœuvre on the stage of the Bowery. It will consist of three battalions, each of twenty companies and 1,000 men. One battalion will protect Ontario, one Quebec and one the maritime provinces. The troops will not be "massed" at any one point, but will be distributed in companies at all points where there is government military preperty to defend. The Minister of Militia has just returned from a trip through Ontario to take possession of where there is government military preperty to defend. The Minister of Militia has just returned from a trip through Ontario to take possession of the barracks and fortifications turned over to him by the imperial authorities.

The army will not, you see, be very formidable. Its men will, I hear, be enlisted for three years. It will only be at best a sort of glorified police force, and will afford opportunities for Mr Langevin, Mr. Chanvean and other politicians of nepotic tendencies to pension off a few of their wives' relations.

I have frequently adverted to the indignation feit by the Protestants of Ontario over the marked diplomatic defeat which they have just suffered at the hands of Bishop Tache and company on the Red River question. Another indignation meeting has just been held at Toronto, when inflammatory speeches were made and blood and thunder resolutions passed. One of the speakers made a mit worth of Bashum, by lugging out of his coat tail pocket what he assured the audience to be the rope with which the lands of Scott were bound when Riel executed him. The Protestant war horse was trotted out, pleaned a nut the conjunction (1985) and a hearth of the property of the confidence of the speakers and a place of the conjunction (1986) and the protestant war horse was trotted out, pleaned and the conjunction (1986) and the protestant of the protestant of the protestant and the conjunction (1986) and the protestant of the protestant of the protestant of the protestant was horse was trotted out, pleaned and the conjunction (1986) and the protestant of the protestant of the protestant of the protestant was horse was trotted out, pleaned and the conjunction (1986) and protestant of the protestant was horse was trotted out, pleaned and the conjunction (1986) and the protestant of the protestant the hands of the British government, it will then be the fully of the people of Canada to demand their independence.

At the conclusion of the meeting the whole issembly folined in singing the national air of Canada, "Vive in Canadanne," the Canadanne," the Hands of Scott were bound when filed executed him. The Protestant war horse was trotted out, placards put the conundrum, "Shall a berruther Orangemen be shot by hireling Papishes!" and a cheerful Elm Park feeling pervade, the atmosphere. A varid and a quarter of resolution was passed; but the only noticeable feature was the final one, which declared that if the government couldn't or wouldn't protect life and Protestantism in the Northwest, the people of Ontario should start a scheme of armed emigration, something after the manner of Kansas and Texas. The idea is very popular among the flery young men of Ontario, and I should not be surprised if such a scheme should be attempted next spring. Rumor places at its head Colonel Denison, a dashing officer of volunteers, an enthusiastic young Canadian, and author of a work on "Modern Cavairy," which has attained a European reputation.

THE ENGLISH TURE.

Poor Sport During a Week-Waiting for the Goodwood-Coming Events-Prices "Vonng Ones." LONDON, July 14, 1870.

The racing during the week, though there has been n enormous quantity of it held all over England, has been remarkably bad in quality and requires no notice whatever. We shall, indeed, see no good sport of this description until the Goodwood meeting which is held in a fortnight, and not only brings ou all our best horses, but is, socially, one of the two nost brilliant gatherings of the year. Its principal races are the Goodwood Stakes and Cup, which are now almost the only objects of speculation in the betting market, where, however, everything is at present state and flat if not unprofitable to some of these concerned. It is a bold thing to say that the mania for turf gambling is gradually dying out, but no one who watches the signs of the times can doubt it. Sporting papers still flourish, and lists of "quotations" are supplied; but as far as real business is concerned they indicate nothing. The great betting men mourn over the "plunging" days when they made fortunes out of now dead, bankrupt or impoverished aristocrats, and compissin bitterly that "there is no money in the market." That is the fact; but the absence of the money is due to the decline in the taste for betting, and it is not too much to say that if government is wise and allows matters to proceed as they are doing there will be no necessity on its part for any legislative interference.

Mr. Blenkiron's second sale of yearlings took place the other day, and was almost as largely attended as the first, but it was far from being an equal success. As usual, it was held under the magnificent elms in front of the Eliham Farm, near London, and also, as usual, it attracted, not only a host of sporting man, but a vest number of clar man. nine-tanths now almost the only objects of speculation in the of both being "loafers," looking after the luncheout, and the champagne. It is Mr. Be intron's coatom to dispose of all the best of his young stock at his first saie, and to reserve for the second the majority of his "weeds," along with a tair sprinking of good ones. In a breeding farm, con incide on so large a scale as that of Middle Park, there must of necessity be a number of weak, badly snaped and unspromising animals, and these are reserved for this sale.

promising animals, and these are reserved for this sale.

It will be remembered that at the first the total amount realized was £16,40°, or $82,025, that the average for each yearing was £33 or $1,570, and that the highest priced lots fetched as much as $5,750, $7,500, $8,250, and even $1,000. On this occasion the amount realized was £,270, or $28,350; the average was £146 or $730, and the best yearling fetched only £370 or $1,800. The sum taken at the two sales was £21,675, or nearly $100,000, being at the rate of $1,200 for each of the cighty-six animals produced at this establishment during a year, and of the total sum over £13,000 or $65,000 is clear profit to Mr. Blenkiron. The sales have been highly satisfactory, not only to him, but to the lover of the surfafor they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be affoat for they show that, whateyer money may be afford for they show that, whateyer money may be afford for they show that in the short of the turf which will be marked by co-unsercial prospersity and will not be marked by co-unsercial prospersity and will not be marked by wing sambling.

AQUATICS.

Boat Race Between Harry Kelley and Joseph Sadler-On the Thames, from Putney to Mortlake-£100 and Heavy Bets at Issue-The Start, Work and Finish.

A boat race between flarry Keiley, formerly cham-pion of the Thames, and Joseph Sader, the well nown Surbiton waterman, took place on the cours between Putney and Mortlake on Thursday. 250 leepest interest among all who are connected wi aquatic affairs.

Though Kelley is now nearly forty years of age and has done an enormous amount of racing, while Sadier is in the very prime of boating life and has done little but training, the former was made a gre favortte and was backed with an enormous a of money.

when there was no race, but we were treated insteated to a law suit, which went through all the courts with the exception of the House of Lords, on appeal, an cost Mr. Charles Bush, the principal supporter of Ketley, no less than £2,000. When the squabble had been arranged another match was got up, and it was that which fortunately was rowed on Thursday with that which fortunately was rowed on Thursday without creating any necessity for calling in the aid of the horse-hair gentlemen.

THE START-BOSHE ON THE RIVER BANKS.

The start was fixed for hair-past three, at which hour a large number of people had assembled on the banks of the Thames, as well as on the decks of numerous steamers, the captains of which, in default of any superintendence by the Thames Conservancy, prepared to create any amount of confusion and danger, and carried out their intentions. The occasion was nonored by the presence of a number of the nobility in a steamer which had been chartered by Lord Londesborough, among them the Duke and Daciess of Manchester, Lady Westmoreland, Lord Carrington and LordBrigham. At one time it was believed that the Prince of Wales would also attend, but he was unfortunately prevented from winessing the last struggle of our most famous oarsman.

Kelley when he came to the post looked rathertoo 'beefy' and not so confilent as usual, but his backers did not see it, and continued to ofter 6 to on him.

backers did not see it, and continued to offer 6 to 4 on him.

Sadier was brought out in magnificent condition, and he assured all his acquaintances that he was certain to win, and he certainty, to unprejudiced eyes, looked as if he could.

On the word being given he started off with the lead, and, to cut a long story short, never allowed the "old man" to get near him, winning "in a canter" by three lengths, though at certain points of the race he was as much as five ahead. Bush lost about £2,000 and Foster, another lookmaker, who is Sadier's principal backer, won £1 600.

The result was one of the greatest surprises of modern times, and the friends of the poor exchampton opened their eyes to the utmost when they saw that despite his spurting, which was of the plucklest description, he could never get within half of histopponent. His day is evidently gone by, but he can afford to rest on the laurets of a long and honorable career.

Career.

DRATH OF HARRY CLASPER.

Poor Harry Clasper, one of the oldest boating meason that nurse of spiendid rowers, the "coaly Tyne," dieu on Thesday afternoon, July 12, of congestion of the brain, after a few days' timess. He was one of the oldest and best of our carsinen, and was the inventor of the outrigger. The samily were celebrated for being connected with boating for generations, and Harry showed the interned taste at a very early period of life, and was padalling about the dirty water when he should have been at his hornbook or his pothooks. He had not been long at this kind of life had not been long at this kind of life that weight was everything, and accordingly, instead of "training down" for a rose men 'traine up;" that is, got as heavy as possible, and met their opponents in the heaviest possible craft. The lour-oared boat, manned entirely by Claspers, was at that time cock of the river, and so great was their success that they challenged the Thames and got signally beaten for their pains. Young Clasper then set about altering his boat, and, having built an outrigged craft, had the santsfaction of seeing himself and his friends walking away from their former conquerors. The result was a complete revoulting in boat build. DEATH OF HARRY CLASPER. the satisfaction of seeing numerif and his friends waiking away from their former conquerors. The result was a complete revolution in boat building, out of which Clasper might have made a fortune, but he preferred rowing to busteness, and allowed others to reap the fruit of his ingenuity. He was one of the plucklest watermen who ever handled an oar, and was never afraid of giving or accepting any challenge. He long held the championship of his own river; but though he fought many a hard battle for it, he could never wrest that of the Thames from his Southern rivals. He saw his best days before 180; but he had the ment of finding out a great successor to his honor in the celebrated Bob Chambers, who died so recently; and he won some races even as late as 1852. When his gory was departing the Newcastle people, who are almost mad after boat-racing and regard its best professors as great public characters, got up a subscription in his behalf and purchased for him, but only in part, awaterside "public," which he was obliged subsequently to leave for that in which he died.

Interesting Boat Race on the Potomac.

WASHINGTON, August 1, 18 One of the most interesting boat races ever had on the waters hereabouts came off this morning on the Potomac, and was witnessed by a large and fashion-able assemblage, many of which were ladies. The race was for boats of twenty-five feet and under, and the prizes offered were a silver cup for the smaller boats and a purse of $150 for the larger ones, For the first named prize the following entries were made:—Fairy, Zepbyr, Elonde. Neconecon, Folly and Grerhound; and for the purse the Curlew, John. H. Adams of Baitmore, which of the Wave, Dolphin and Little Elia were the contestants. The boats started from a point in the river opposite the lower part of the city, ran around a boat off Fort Washington, and returned, making an entire distance of about fifteen miles. The smaler boats started first; the Fairy, taking the lead and keeping it, was the first to round the Fort Washington stakeboat, and came home a few moments ahead of the others. Greater interest was manifested in the race between the larger boats, and considerable money changed hands on the announcement of the result. They reached the home boat in the following order:—Little Elia, Adams, Dolphin, Water Witch, and Curlew. It is probable a maten will be made between the Elia and the Adams for a race on the Patapsco some time during the present month. For the first named prize the following entries were PEERSKILL, N. Y., August 1, 1870.

A very closely contested working boat race came owned by Messrs. Cloak and Hart, and Waters, in the boat Shoo Fly, owned by Driscoll. The distance was four miles, and Haight won by one and a half lengths, in twenty-eight minutes thirty seconds. The starting dock was crowded with spectators, and there was considerable betting.

A HEARTY OLD MAN.—The Dodge county (littnois) Democrat says that living in the village of Oak Grove, in that county, is a man whose superior in agility, good health and vigor of life cannot be found in Wisconsin. Mr. H. Fanshaw is the man; he is seventy-three years old, works every day at his trade and carries the mail on foot six times a week between Juneau and Oak Grove, the distance being three miles. His step is as firm and elastic as though he were a man of lorty. His father, lay years old, and mother, los years old, are still alive, hale, hearty and active.
